EAST SAGINAW, MICH., April 7.—The ting Nellie Cotton went up the river yesterday afternoon, being the first boat of the season. The river is all clear between this point and Bay City. The steamer Daniel Ball will commence making regular trips Thursday.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 7.—While a party were engaged in firing a salute, last evening, in honor of the Democratic victory in Connecticut, the cannon prematurely exploded on the uineteenth round, injuring Wm. Petrie in a terrible manner; part of one of his hands was blown off, and he was shockingly burned about the breast and face; both his eyes are supposed to be destroyed. It is possible that he may recover.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 7.—The ferry-boat Undine made her first trip of the season yesterday. She has been kept very busy crossing with the Black Hills, expedition, which, on account of so much ice running the day before was obliged to postpone the time of its starting until about noon. Over 50 wagons and 200 men were transferred to the Nebraska side and are now on their way to the Reservation. Canon were fired in honor of their departure.

NEW YORK, April 7.—The Pope's embassadors, who arrived yesterday with the berretta to Cardinal McCloskey, are to-day resting from the tatigue of their journey. To-morrow they visit the various institutions and enjoy the sights of the city. During their stay they will be the guests of the Bishop. The length of their visit is not known. The ceremony of investing Bishop McCloskey with the besignia of Cardinal takes place with great ceremony. The day has not yet been designated, but will be decided shortly. The Catholic ladies of New York are discussing the advisability of a public reception to the embassadors. The sate arrival of the embassadors has been telegraphed to the Pope.

Brooklyn, April 7.— Beecher began the fourth day of his testimony looking better than ever. The Court, as usual, was crowded. Evarts stated that Cleveland, whose testimony is now being taken, is recovering, and suggested he be permitted to leave the city to recruit, for a few days. Tilton's counsel acquissced. Cleveland will succeed Beecher esced. Cleveland will succeed Beecher on the stand. Beecher began his testimony by referring to his connection with Mrs. Woodhull. He had extended conference with her in Moulton's study, when she asked and witness flatly refused to preside at the Status Hell.

ference with her in Moulton's study, when she asked and witness flatly refused to preside at the Steinway Hall meeting.

Moulton afterward urged witness to preside at the meeting. He said it would make witness famous, and he made a great mistake in not making a friend of Mrs. Woodhull. Witness was determined never to ally him to this scoret movement. When Mrs. Woodhull entered the parlor Moulton and wife kissed her. There was kissing all around. [Lzughter.] Witness had received letters from Mrs. Woodhull, three in all—one dated Washington, asking him to address the Woman's Suffrage meeting in that city. Witness read the poem of "Sir Marmaduke's Musing," when it was published.

Beecher explained the domestic relations of Mr. and Mrs. Tillon. He had determined to keep their secret, and as he was fearful it would come out and work harm to all three, he suffered in consequence. His willingness "to step dows and out" he said referred to the anxiety he felt that the domestic relations he had caused in Tilton's household would be the subject of an investihold would be the subject of an investi-gation by his church, and rather than his church should suffer he would "step down and out."

The expression "I am willing to be encrificed, but if I should be destroyed he would not be sayed," Beecher said was in reference to his willingness to leave the pulpit of Plymouth Church rather than the matter of Tilton's domestic unhappiness and business ruin that he had in past accomplished should that he had in past accomplished should fall upon his church.

"I loved my church." said witness and "I thought of her first, last and at all times. I did not want my private affairs carried there under any circumstances." In explanation of the clause containing the words "Ragged edge of despair and remorse" he said: I could undertake to clear Tilton among my friends of the peculiar social doctrines he maintained. In endeavoring to restore him to power and influence I was in fact trying to undo a wrong I had done him.

At that time I was satisfied the Bowen stories about him were unfounded, that he was not themperate, brutal or unkind to his family. I conceived of mothing more terrible than to be the father of a ruined home, and seeing the full fruits of this feeling I wrote those words.

"I was in remorse for the injury I had done, in fear that the secret would come out, and I always experienced anxiety for Tilton." The letter of March 25th, 1872, in which Beecher expressed the belief that he is preparing his last sermon, was next referred to. Witness said he felt that way every Sunday and Friday. A young lad fourteen years of age, named David Frick, employed at Henshaw's Chair Factory on Elm and Canal streets, yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock, was caught in some machinery and hurt very considerably on the wrist of his right hand, severing the arteries, and receiving a horrible out in his side. He was taken immediately to the Cincinnati Hospital where he was attended to by Dr. C. S. Muscroft, and everything possible done to alleviate his sufferings. He had been given whisky by some factonsiderate man at the factory which has done much to lower his condition. It is now supposed that lock-jaw has set in and he lying very low, with scarce any hope of recovery. No one at the factory is to blame for the accident, as the lad was playing on a floor where he was not employed.

The Pioneers of Hamilton County met in the Council Chamber to-day. There were present a larger number, perhaps, than at any similar reunion during the past few years. Men and women were there who figured in our early history, and who have lived to see the wonderful development and material progress made in the Nalley during the past fifty years. Most of them are living in Hamilton county yet, but seme who were present to-day have removed to adjoining counties, and in some cases to distant parts of the State. There were not seats enough to accommodate all who were present to-day, and many were comone dated Washington, asking him to address the Woman's Suffrage meeting is that city. Witness read the poem of "Sir Marmaduke's Musing," when it was published.

He spoke to Moulton about it, calling it dastardly in referring to the unwisdom of Tilton dragging his wife's name in disrepute. Moulton agreed with witness as to its character.

In Dec. 1871, he had a conversation with Tilton in regard to severing his (Tilton's) connection wint the Plymouth Chorch. Tilton complained of ill feeling against him in the church and withmess endeavored to persuade him to attend the services saying that he would do all he possibly could to reinstate him. That was all the conversation witness remembered.
